

A Fruitful and Vital Life in Aleppo July 2018

When war-affected populations in Syria entered the post-conflict phase, we have observed difficulties in regulating strong emotional responses to stressors.

As the leadership of the Armenian Protestant Churches in Syria, we have decided to offer professional help to the war-affected children and families to build their skills and to manage their emotions and navigate challenging situations. Such interventions, with a focus on emotion regulation, personal development, interpersonal relationships, executive functions, problem solving, and priority setting will help improve their day-to-day functioning and connect to life opportunities especially around education and employment.

Armenian Evangelical “Bethel Polyclinic”

In 2013, the Armenian Evangelical Bethel Church established “Bethel Polyclinic”, which is located on the campus of the church. The aim was right from the beginning to run a clinic, which would have specialists in the most common fields of medicine available to the general public. It was also set up to receive patients who had been injured during the war in Syria. “Bethel Polyclinic” was also set up to help patients with chronic diseases and thus in need of long-time medical assistance. There is no doubt that chronic pain affects many aspects of a patient’s life like sleep, mood, ability to work, family and social activities. Bethel Polyclinic deals with all of these problems in a responsible way using the best method of care available.

Today our Clinic is continuing its mission with a multidisciplinary team made up of eight specialists in internal Medicine, Orthopedics, Dermatology, Otolaryngology, Gynecology, Pediatrics, Urology and General Surgery. All our experts have years of experience in Personal Injury Assessments.
